

Help with Federal Government Agencies

Written by Mike Honda
Friday, 18 December 2009 08:17

Sometimes it can be difficult to navigate the maze of the federal government. As a federal government representative, I am able to make inquiries to federal government agencies. My district office can help you obtain reliable information, forms and applications, and inquire on your behalf with a federal government agency. Although my staff cannot guarantee a particular outcome, they will do their best to help you receive a fair and timely response to your concern.

Sometimes it can be difficult to navigate the maze of the federal government. As a federal government representative, I am able to make inquiries to federal government agencies. My district office can help you obtain reliable information, forms and applications, and inquire on your behalf with a federal government agency. Although my staff cannot guarantee a particular outcome, they will do their best to help you receive a fair and timely response to your concern.

You can find information about federal government agencies at usa.gov . I also have a website dedicated to Veterans information

. Please check agency web sites before contacting my office, because they may contain the information you need. If your case involves a state or local agency, please contact your state or local government representative for assistance. For your convenience, I have created a listing of many state and local government agencies

. You may also contact state and local government agencies about any general consumer complaint

.

You can always contact my district office for assistance with a federal government agency; however, you may be able to resolve concerns on your own. You can find more information on the services my office can help with , as well as answers to the most frequently asked questions

There are many community-based organizations that may be able to provide assistance. These organizations are not governmental agencies, but they do exist to serve citizens in a variety of ways. For a list of some of the community-based organizations serving residents of the 15th District, click here .

If you are looking for tours, congressional art contest, academy nominations or flag requests,

Help with Federal Government Agencies

Written by Mike Honda

Friday, 18 December 2009 08:17

please visit the Constituent Services page on my website.